Update on President Cliff

I visited Cliff Friday afternoon. Pretty chirpy I felt - Cliff not me!

He is still having treatment to his leg but is up and about. Last Saturday and Sunday (20/21 Feb) Cliff was expecting to be released from hospital at 7 am on each day but as he is on auto-feed antibiotics 6 hourly had to return by 1 pm. He was obviously delighted he would have the opportunity to visit his wife and also to spend time at home with family. He commented his daughter had ordered a skip but he had requested a photo be taken of items to be included therein - we all know our kids never show us photos they don't want us to see! Cliff expects the 6 hourly antibiotics will be required for some time and the doctors were working towards having this facility available from shoulder pack in time.

Cliff said the doctors also expected that his increased activity would make him tired initially so with that and the shared available visiting time between home and the hospital, it is currently difficult to comment on visits. It is suggested to give a little time and this will become clearer. It's good to see his further improvement.

Cheers
Brian Bluck
